

The Nexus Between Local Government, Organizational Justice and Gender - Melis Arıksoy

In this new episode of Paradigma in collaboration with Panorama, we talked with Melis Arıksoy on her recent MA thesis completed at Edinburgh University.

Podcast'i dinlemek için:

Melis Ariksoy, University of Edinburgh

Melis Ariksoy has recently attained her MSc degree from the University of Edinburgh in Social Justice and Community Action. Her dissertation focuses on the nexus among gender, organizational justice, and local government. She aims to contribute to the gap in literature through studying organizational justice at local government level which is still a grey area for researchers. Previously, she did double major in Political Science-International Relations and Sociology at University of Bahçeşehir. During her studies, she also had the chance to be part of Erasmus exchange programme in Philipps University of Marburg. Along with her academic career, she currently works as market research specialist at GfK - an NIQ company in CMI - CSM (Customer Success Management) department. Likewise, she is both involved in quantitative and qualitative projects which are realized in diverse sectors from telecommunications to tech&durables. She does voluntary work in NGO's that focus on environmental awareness, gender equality, and education.

Erman Ermihan, Kadir Has University

Erman Ermihan is a PhD student at Kadir Has University, Department of International Relations. After completing his undergraduate studies in the same department at Istanbul Bilgi University, he received his master's degree in Political Science from Sabancı University. His research interests include Turkey-European Union relations, Turkish Foreign Policy, and identity and emotions in foreign policy.